

Repeals Assertion That Country Needs Democratic Congress

Chairman Bugbee Attacks "Hun" Campaign Methods

Trenton, Nov. 1. Governor Edge, candidate for the United States Senate long term, issued a public statement today in which he called upon his Democratic opponents, former Banking and Insurance Commissioner George M. LaMonte, of Bound Brook, for specifications concerning the latter's statement, that unless he, LaMonte, were elected, the war would last one or two years longer.

"If Mr. LaMonte's election can stop the war," said the Governor, "and bring a satisfactory peace more quickly than anything else, then I am frankly ready to admit that he should be elected. I shall be perfectly ready to say that I do not believe my election will stop the war, or at least that the termination of the war soon or late depends upon my going to Washington as a Senator, or in fact any one else. My own notion is that 2,000,000 American fighters in the trenches on the other side will stop the war, and I only hope that I may be in Washington by consent of the people in order that I may assist in preparing to show that a grateful country is in readiness to greet American patriots upon their return with a preparedness program such as, in my judgment, can best be outlined and put into effect by a business-like Republican Congress."

The Governor after quoting from a speech made by Mr. LaMonte in Elizabeth and Newark, in which the Democratic candidate called the men who are going to vote against the President for Edge and a Republican Congress "pacifists, pro-Germans, malcontents and political henchmen of the Republican machine," asked:

"Is it possible that Mr. LaMonte means to say that the 50,000 Jerseymen who took the trouble to vote for me in the recent primaries are for the Kaiser and against the President, that they are pacifists, pro-Germans and malcontents? Does he mean to say that only the 15,000 who gave him a vote in the primaries are really patriotic Americans and supporters of the President? Does he insinuate that the 570 out of the 600 or so New Jersey boys in the trenches abroad who had an opportunity to vote in the recent primaries and cast their vote for the Governor of New Jersey, instead of the Democratic political opponents, are pacifists, pro-Germans and malcontents?"

Bugbee Denounces "Hun" Tactics An eleventh-hour rural newspaper advertising campaign by the Democratic State organization, appealing to farmers and other residents of rural sections on patriotic grounds and over the name of the "Loyalty League of New Jersey," was condemned by Republican State Chairman Newton A. Bugbee today as "nothing less than Hun style of propaganda."

"The Republicans," he added, "have never had to make a submarine campaign of this type. They have always put before the public candidates whose experience in public life and records merited public support. I do not believe that New Jersey will tolerate a party that submits servilely to boss domination in the primaries and then never attempts to justify its party nominee, but endeavors to get support in an underhand way by making support of the Democratic party a new war emergency, and insulting the intelligence of the people by the bogey that the war will be lost and peace will be impossible unless Democrats hold down the jobs at Washington."

LaMonte's Manager Sees Plot Taking the position that in order to prevent unseemly wrangling in Washington over war and peace measures, it is necessary for the voters to heed President Wilson's appeal for a Democratic Congress, Sheriff Elmer M. Gieran, campaign manager for George M. LaMonte, Democratic candidate for United States Senator, in a statement today said:

"The attack of the Republican leadership upon President Wilson's appeal to the voters of the country is the culmination of their systematic opposition to him and his policies ranging over a period of several months. Hitherto their criticism and attack upon the President had been put forth only in covert ways with open professions of adherence to the President's policies. As the election approached the opposition leaders such as Roosevelt and Lodge carried on their attack especially during the recent acute diplomatic situation."

President Wilson correctly interpreted these hostile acts at home and thereupon took the country into his confidence by directly appealing for the election of a Democratic Congress that would uphold his hands. This appeal to the people by the President has elicited forth a torrent of partisan abuse from Mr. Roosevelt and his followers, and has clearly shown the character of the treatment which the President has received from a Congress dominated by such impetuous partisans. To prevent unseemly wrangling at Washington, a sample of which Mr. Roosevelt and his followers have given this week, it is necessary for the voters to heed President Wilson's appeal and return a Democratic House and Senate to Washington."
